Eveline Martin is Evia Triplett. Perhaps Martin = Murray? Eveline was a farmer. James and Henry were railroad laborers.

1887 - 1901 Originally "The Meadows" was the 160-acre homestead of the Tripplett family, of which two brothers, Harry and Cabe were prominent. It was this family which set out the once - famous fruit orchards. The two Tripplett brothers, Harry and Clabe, were the builders of the fair-sized old homestead a two-story frame house for which they hand whip-sawed the lumber. The kitchen section of the building was the first section built, and markings on the lumber are those of the old 10-foot saw which they used.²

Hugo would become famous for its fruit orchards, some of them started by the Tripletts.

The Tripletts, A Hugo Pioneer Family: 1887 - 1902

Hugo Culture³ The three Triplett brothers were the building contractors of the day in Hugo. They build the original Triplett home with lumber from a pitsaw which was a large two-handed saw used to cut logs into planks; while sawing one brother stood above the log and the other in a pit below.

The Tripplett's first home was a box building style with whip-sawed boards laid out up and down; you don't need studs. Later they added a two-story frame building (siding is horizontal) to the box building.

They probably built the original Hugo store and the Holgate place. A big pole barn on the Peterson place might have built by the Tripletts. A current neighbor, Norbert Tieman, torn it down and put it back together on his property.

At some point the brothers got into a conflict and the land was divided. William Triplett got 10 acres that later became the Ahern place, and another nice two story house was built there. The other two Triplett brothers got the 150 acres.

1901 A social dance, under the management of H. W. Triplett and Chas. Bean will be given at the Hugo school house on the evening of March 29."⁴

Charley Triplett was a passenger on Sunday's south bound train to Alameda to visit his mother.⁵

Petersons: 1901 Mr. Peterson has purchased Harry Triplett's farm and is planting potatoes, corn and garden.⁶

Suicide At Hugo: 1902 We have just heard of the death of Mrs. Triplett of Hugo. She committed suicide by drowning herself in a small pool of water. Her daughter Rosa recently went crazy and was committed to the asylum. Probably that preyed on her mind until it became unbalance. She was an honest upright woman, loved by all. She leaves a host of friends who will mourn her loss.⁷

1911 The marriage of Chas. Triplet and Miss Anna B. McCallister Sunday, the 4th, and which is more particularly mentioned in another item in this issue was a very pleasant affair and reflects credit on Mr. and Mrs. Baer, at whose home the ceremony took place, as entertainers at such events.⁸
