Overview Hugo, Oregon like most places has its Native American history, some known, most not. Hugo's first citizens or peoples were probably the lowland Takelma Indians of the Rogue River Valley.¹

Hugo Neighborhood One of the ways the Hugo Neighborhood aims to best promote the social welfare of its Hugo neighbors is by collecting, preserving, interpreting, and researching its rich local history, and encouraging neighbor's interest in the history of the Hugo area, in their geographic place, in their community. We know the quality of rural life in Hugo is enhanced through citizen knowledge of its history and the sense of community that a historical perspective facilitates.

Coyote

On a more localized level, some supernatural beings were directly associated with particular natural objects, including rocks, trees, and mountains. It was to these specific objects that offerings of food and valuables, as well as prayers, were often made. An example of the practice was noted by Sapir and Harrington in regard to Dan-mologol or Rock Old Woman. This spirit was localized in a large rock located in Lowland Takelma territory near Sexton Mountain
