

Three Pines Lumber Co. Busy Logging

Rogue River Courier, February 26, 1913

Hugo Neighborhood Association & Historical Society

George Reiber, engineer in charge of the donkey engine at the Three Pines logging camp, was in town Saturday to receive surgical treatment for a crushed finger of the right hand. The injury was received through the breaking of a block and the snapping back of a cable, which struck him on the hand.

Mr. Reiber states that twenty men are now employed by the Three Pines Lumber company in the logging camp and in getting the mill ready for operation that sawing will commence next week when a larger crew will be put on.